“ My dearest grandfather \ father words will never truly express my unconditional love for you. To you teaching my how to ride my first bike. Teaching me how to cook and make our family favorite tamales. Ill never forget how you and my daddy showed up at my door ready to teach me. Not only did you raise 8 kids three that were your own, you raised and Adopted us three you guys lets us keep our mothers name and gave us yours as well!. A man like you is one in a million you truly loved us all. I grew up in a house full of uncles and one auntie. How we all managed to fit In that house ill never know. You would always be there for us no matter what. You enjoyed the simple things in life like a cup of coffee. Ill forever cherish our family rides to la junta and ordway. Ill forever cherish every good memory of you. Your wings were ready my heart was not. Rest in paradise.

“ Hi poncho I just wanted to tell you thank you. You raise eight kids. But five of us wasn't yours. But that didn't stop you from marrying are mom. That's what I call a man. I have a lot of memories of you I remember when my car flip over and you came to the hospital to check on me. I know god has you in heaven no more shaking and no more pain or scars. Like the song goes the only one that has scars is the one holding you. And that is Jesus. So rest in heaven poncho I will forever grateful for what you did for my mom and other brothers and one sister. You are one of a kind of a man that we don't see anymore. Thanks again poncho love lee romero
